TOGETHER FOR EUROPE: SHARED VALUES AND DEMOCRATIC CITIZENSHIP

PROFESOR COORDONATOR: IROVEANU AURA

1. Introducere
2. Activități
3. Întâlniri

Introducere

Acest proiect își propune să promoveze o înțelegere a valorilor comune ale Europei în rândul elevilor, cum ar fi toleranța, egalitatea, libertatea și democrația. Prin promovarea abilităților de cetățenie democratică, proiectul încurajează elevii să se implice activ în comunitățile lor, să respecte diversitatea culturală și să lucreze împreună pentru o Europă mai incluzivă și mai coezivă. Prin activități de colaborare, elevii vor explora ce înseamnă să fii un cetățean activ și responsabil într-o Europă unită. Elevii dobândesc conștientizare a valorilor europene comune.

VALORI EUROPENE

ACTIVITATE 1

- elevii cercetează care sunt valorile europene
- elevii elaborează un ppt comun despre tema abordată

"Once upon a time, in a village where different cultures and languages came together, people respected each other and always lived together by helping each other. Everyone in the village understood the value of living together. But one day a new family came to the village and this family was trying to understand the old traditions of the village. When the family started to discover the common values in the village..."

At dawn, the council chamber filled again, this time not with arguments, but with expectation. Lynn entered calmly, a datapad in hand, her voice steady as she addressed the room. "We can't outgun them," she began, "but we can outlast them—through unity, resilience, and a vision that gives people something to fight for, not just against."

"Together for Europe: Shared Values and Democratic Citizenship"

Shared Table: A Tale of Belonging

Once upon a time, in the heart of Europe, there was a small town surrounded by mountains. This town was a unique place where people from different cultures had lived together for centuries, where traditions blended, and languages intertwined. Despite their differences, the people were deeply connected. Justice, freedom, and solidarity were the town's most cherished values.

One day, a new family moved to the town. Opening the door of an old stone house, they were refugees escaping war, hoping for a fresh start. Although the townspeople welcomed them warmly, the newcomers still felt like outsiders. The languages were different, the food was unfamiliar, and even the way people greeted each other seemed strange.

Long after, the town square hosted a grand festival. Everyone brought something from their own culture—French bread, Italian pasta, German sausages, Spanish music... The townspeople invited the new family as well. At first hesitant, the family relaxed when they saw their children laughing and playing with the other kids. An elderly woman handed them a piece of homemade bread and smiled, saying, "Everyone here has a different story, but we all share the same table."

As the festival went on, the newcomers began to understand the spirit of the town. It wasn't about what language they spoke, but about making an effort to understand each other. It wasn't about what food they preferred, but about sharing their meal. It wasn't about where they came from, but about being

The person in front of him, at the front gate, didn't flinch. He narrowed his eyes behind dark sunglasses and tilted his head slightly.

"Who's asking?" he said, voice low.

The man stepped forward, his coat flapping slightly in the cold breeze.
